Subdivisions to split Revenue Sharing pot

At the regular meeting of the Antioch Township Board, Supervisor Jim Fields announced that the revenue sharing meeting had been held with representatives of the subdivisions in the township.

He said that 30 subdivisions were invited and representatives from 25 attended. They were told that there was $7,500 to be divided among the subdivisions and there was a unanimous agreement that the money be divided equally giving each subdivision $300.

An annually adopted ordinance was passed for the use of prevailing labor rates when dealing with contractors if any federal monies would be used. The prevailing rates to be used in the ordinance were according to union scale.

Wave of ASL hysteria rolls past depositors

by GLORIA DAVIS

The big wave of hysteria has washed over the depositors of the Antioch Savings and Loan (ASL) and the crowds of people, some of whom were very upset, are no longer waiting and forming long lines in order to check on their accounts with Antioch's new savings institution, GreatAmerican Federal Savings and Loan.

As this paper goes to press there were no more long lines standing outside the old ASL buildings or crowds of people on the street in front.

The customers were finally able to crowd inside by Friday.

One customer we talked to had shown up in front of the doors by 9 a.m. on Tuesday, was given a number and told that there were 150 in front of him.

When he checked back over an hour later, they were on number 40.

Have the depositors drained that institution by withdrawing their money, transferring it to other financial institutions?

Well so far the doors of the State Bank across the street have not been battered down by former ASL customers and the First National Bank down the street has not had to add to its staff to handle an ASL influx.

According to Andrew Bernhart, president of the State Bank, "We've had some accounts from the ASL but not a lot so far. We had been having a slow but steady flow of accounts from the ASL coming in even before last week."

"We have had an increase in safety deposit box holders from there. It'll take time for a lot of those depositors to get things straightened out over there," he added.

Bernhart said that any amount of account switching will depend on two things, "how well they (the depositors) regard us and if GreatAmerican does a good job convincing those depositors that their money is safe."

Peter Clevon, president of the First National Bank, said that his bank had seen "no dramatic switchovers."

"I think that it is a non-event as far as customers changing their primary financial practices," he said.

"GreatAmerican is a good operation and as long as they provide good customer services, I doubt if we will see many switchovers," he added.

He went on to say that CD's are insured and they will pay the same interest as they pay anywhere else and most people are not willing to lose money in penalties by making a switch.

"People have been aware of the trouble in the savings and loans for a long time but they also have known that their money is insured, so as long as GreatAmerican provides good customer services, as I understand they have been doing, I don't expect many changes," he said.

Kurt Kluever, public relations director at Great American reports, "As far as I can see people have been understanding when it is explained to them that it will be business as usual. Of course we've lost some accounts, but we've also opened-up some new ones," he concluded.

Township gives okay Fields spurs approval of flood area survey

by GLORIA DAVIS

"The two biggest problems in Lake County are drainage and solid waste," said Antioch Township Supervisor Jim Fields during a discussion held by the Antioch Township Board on finding solutions to the constant flooding situation in the Lake Catherine-Channel Lake areas.

Fields' remark was obviously meant to lend impetus to his push to get started on the problem by approving the survey of that area to be taken by Devery Engineering, Inc., Libertyville, in light of the $100,000 in Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds just allocated the township to find those solutions.

Fields' impatience was obvious, at the last regular meeting of the township board held on Thursday, July 16, when board members Richard Harlan and Rich Kufalk showed some reticence to give that approval.

Harlan seemed to be worried about the legal aspect of using township money for the ultimate maintenance of any drainage construction.

"I think we should ask the township attorney's opinion on whether or not the township has the authority under state statute to spend money on drainage," Harlan said.

Kufalk and Harlan were worried about the township maintaining drainage lines that might be run through private property.

"A governmental body cannot go on private property for the maintenance of drainage," Harlan said.

Kufalk repeatedly voiced his fears about the high cost of that maintenance.

"That's a five-year project and maintaining it could be very costly, will we be able to afford to do it?" Kufalk questioned.

"I think you're putting the cart before the horse," said Fields, adding that the board would not know what kind of problems it would face and whether or not any work would have to be done on private property until they saw the finished survey.

It was mentioned that other municipalities had been able to handle the private property problem through private easements.

Fields was adamant when he said, "We'll handle the problem of getting the money for maintenance when it arises."

Fields said he considered the matter of such importance that the maintenance money would come from General Assistance or through a levy if need be down the road.

The board then unanimously approved the survey, slated to cost $5,800, leaving approximately $94,000 in CDBG funds for construction, with the most problematic areas assumed first on that agenda.

Prather was two for three with two RBI's, Zitkus was two for three with one RBI. John Silanoff had one hit and two RBI's; Derek Olsen, one hit and two RBI's; John Humphreys, a triple and John Mahar a single, to complete the run total.

Burke sets sights on Senate post

by GLORIA DAVIS

It looks like Antioch has two political hopefuls that believe in climbing the political pole even higher after they've slipped on it.

Unlike Bob Wilton who went down a peg when he ran for a trustee seat and won it after he lost the mayoral one, Phil Burke, who also was a mayoral candidate in the crowded April 1981 village election has set his sights on Charles Percy's U.S. Senate seat.

Maybe Burke feels that if an unknown from Antioch Like Dan DeFosse can run for Congress and then decide to go for the White House after he loses, he too can have lofty ambitions.

Burke, has hopes of running on the November, 1984 ticket as the American Concerned Citizens Party candidate if he gets his candidacy petitions signed by 2,500 people.

If so, he will face the winner of the Republican and Democratic primaries.

According to Burke, the American Concerned Citizens Party has been a registered political party since 1981.

Survey answers slated to spur retail progress

At a meeting of the Downtown Revitalization and Economic Development Committee of the Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry, scheduled for Monday, August 8, a review will be made of the results of the questionnaires slated to be sent within a week to Antioch businessmen.

The questions will ask their opinions and ideas on improving the downtown shopping area.

Then, using information and ideas gained from these questionnaires, plans for a survey of area residents will be finalized.

The survey is slated to be sent to individual homes by late August.

According to Chamber President Dan Dreyer, the answers gained from both of these surveys will help form the basis of any major plans the committee will make recommending certain additions and changes in the retail community.

Dreyer added that there was a possibility that the village might help fund the surveys since it also could benefit from them.

New members of the committee are James Swaitek, Kay DeRousse and Toni Mason.

Smaller committees to work on specific projects are expected to be formed within the next couple of months.

Present small projects that the committee is joining the village in implementing include replacement of dead or dying trees in the downtown area and other plans on the beautification of the prime shopping areas.

Antioch and Waste Management will face off before the Lake County Zoning Board of Appeals on Wednesday, July 20.

The face-off is at the village's request, according to Attorney Donna Henderson. Waste Management is seeking a soil erosion permit to remove from eight to 22 feet of soil to use as cover if their vertical expansion request is ever granted.

Antioch contends that what Waste Management needs is an excavating permit, which requires a conditional use permit which in turn mandates a public hearing.

Henderson says the amount of dirt the landfill company wants to remove is 270,000 square feet, "an enormous amount. And all they need for a soil erosion permit is a signature. What we want is a public hearing," she said.

She said the hearing Wednesday is an appeal to keep the county from issuing the permit, and instead consider a hearing on a conditional use permit for excavating.

"If they issue the permit the only recourse we have is to challenge it in court," Henderson said.

Seek Antioch input on criminal justice

Residents of Antioch and the rest of Lake County are being encouraged to participate in a meeting to discuss the future of criminal justice in the county.

The Lake County Criminal Justice Advisory Committee will hold a public hearing, 7 p.m., Thursday, July 21 in the lobby of the Lake County Courthouse, Waukegan.

Invitations were sent to all agencies and departments which might be able to provide input. The general public will be invited to present its own concerns relative to the possibilities for improvement of the Lake County criminal justice system.

Public testimony will be limited to 10 minutes per person and written input is encouraged, Hoogasian said.

Persons desiring may submit written comments to the office of the county administrator, 18 N. County St., Waukegan, Ill. 60085. Attn: Bill Barron.

Those wishing to make oral comments are asked to call Barb Turk at the county administrator's office, (312) 689-6603, so that a list of presenters can be compiled.

"The information and comments received by the committee at this public hearing will be used in our deliberations in formulating viable, long-term recommendations to the Lake County Board," said Hoogasian. "The recommendations will hopefully shape the direction of the local criminal justice system for years to come."

Electric Or Manual Toothbrush

Q. Is there any advantage to using an electric toothbrush rather than a manual one?

A. Not really. Which you use is purely a matter of preference. Most studies have shown that the manual brush, used correctly, removes plaque, food particles and other bits and pieces that move in and around gums and teeth even more effectively than the electric brush. But if you enjoy the electric brush more, you'll probably do a better cleaning job with it. Some people find it more stimulating and refreshing.

If you do choose an electric brush, select one with either an elliptical or a horizontal movement rather than up-and-down action, since that action can push food particles into the sulcus (space between teeth and gums) or into periodontal pockets and cause infection.

For people with poor manual dexterity because of a physical disability, the electric toothbrush has proven to be a boon!

When I think about it Summer's okay my way!

by GLORIA DAVIS

Everybody is always talking about the free and easy living that summertime brings.

For everyone else maybe it's Relaxation U.S.A., but as usual, my perverse nature again succeeds in turning the easiest tasks into monumental efforts.

First of all, dressing is supposed to be easier, you know lighter and less clothing.

Not so! Coolness means cotton and lots of white and pastels, which means (for me, the slob and klutz of the world) more washing and much of it hand laundering for the really nice things.

For a person who was pooped after the weekly gathering of clothes and transporting them to the cleaners plus picking them up, this is muchness!

Then there's summer cooking out, so simple for my neighbor who's always "just tossing little gourmet things on the grill."

Personally I prefer my unattended indoor microwaved dinners (touched up with a little liquid smoke for that outdoor flavor) to slaving over my mosquito surrounded barbecue while perspiration bastes the hamburgers.

Now we come to yard work, the reason I had a large dart board made out of a picture of Luther Burbank.

Of all household labors this is my most unfavorable one and consequently I am not only terrible at it, I despise it even more than ironing. (This from a gal that went without meals to send her ironing out before permapress.)

The lawnmower hates me and refuses to start until my hand is numb and my arm aches from pulling the starter chord.

We have already discussed my black thumb as far as flowers are concerned. Even when they do grow in my meager garden, I'm always pulling perfectly good plants instead of the weeds I aim for.

The trimming of the yard always falls to me. Lucky me, I have a weed wand! If you don't believe me, I have the whip lashes on my legs to prove it.

Oh those weed-eaters work fine -- for about two weeds, then it's "tangle-break-time."

It doesn't take long for my hand to become too sore to push the disc in, in order to untangle the line. It takes less time for my patience to turn into complete hysterical frustration.

There isn't a tree in our yard that that handy little gadget hasn't been wrapped around.

Don't you just love it when the line catches onto something and almost completely unravels.

I guess the greatest problem I have with summer's simple life is that people expect to see you working in your yard or riding your bike, or jogging, or on the tennis court or (horrors of all horrors) working in your vegetable garden.

The only thing worse than that last one is canning those vegetables in a hot, jar laden, peel-piled kitchen!

Besides I've always been afraid of botulism ever since I read "East of Eden."

I can't tell you all the work these great expectations caused me in the old days, I used to spend hours inventing excuses, like suddenly becoming allergic to all growing things.

Then there was that hot itchy fake ankle cast that was my perfect out until the night I had to sit out my favorite dances at a summer party and was left home at water skiing time.

But those were the ploys of youth. Now the honesty that comes with age is mine! My favorite summer sports are soaking up the sun while reading a sexy novel and floating on a raft in the middle of the lake where human eyes have no access to the sight of this body in a bathing suit.

Climbing on a bar stool in an air conditioned bar and lifting those cool ones is all the exercise I require.

My favorite outfit is a silky strapless "mumu" with as little as possible underneath, even though I do look a little like "Bloody Mary" in them.

And forget the cooking! I could live on peanutbutter and banana sandwiches, Pudding Pops, fresh fruit and cool liquids until the snow flies.

Yep! That's my kind of summer!

IDENTITY

Am I Sadie?--I'm quite sure I am.
Although I was known as the daughter of Sam.
As a young lady I had a good life,
Fell in love and became Bill's wife.
Several months later, in fact just nine,
I became Patty's mother--just in time.
The years flew by--diapers and all.
Then I became Mike's grandmother that fall.
The calendar speed was just too fast,
But now--I'd have my identity at last.
I'm older, I'm wiser, and now I'm Sadie,
Until I heard Bill call me "his old lady."

Betty and Arnold Schulmeister must be proud of their son-in-law, Staff Sgt. Kevin Kline who was named outstanding non-commissioned officer of the quarter for his squadron at Randolph Air Force Base, Tex.. Kevin is married to the Schulmeister's little girl Bonnie.

Another Antioch military man on his way is Airman James Dombrowski, son of John Dombrowski, who has been assigned to Keesler Air Force Base, Miss. John is a 1981 graduate of Antioch High School.

Belated birthday wishes to our honorable Mayor Ray Toft who celebrated his 39th birthday again on Sunday, July 19.

For those looking for something different, over 90 artists will be exhibiting and selling their work. There will be Suzuki violin and musical performance, barn dances, variety food booths, children's activities and tours of David Adler's home at the art festival slated for the David Adler Cultural Center in Libertyville on August 6 and 7.

I received a baby announcement from Gregg and Julie Drije who have just adopted their second son Mathew Roger, weight-six pounds, seven ounces.

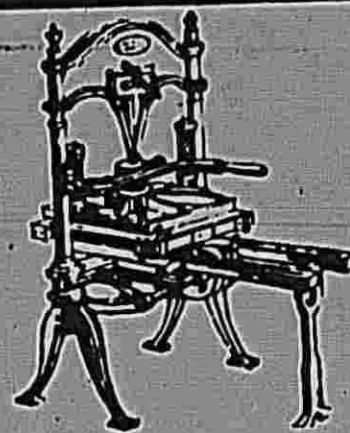

Gregg is a former Antioch resident having attended Antioch Grade and High School.

And speaking of the Drije family, congrats to Jerry who made the dean's list at Coyne American Inst., Chicago.

The Time Machine

FIFTY YEARS AGO: July 20, 1933

The reunion of Jean Harlow and Clark Gable in "Hold Your Man," showing at a local theater was touted on the front page of the News.

Otto Lehman, owner of an extensive estate in Lake Villa, was being guarded by 24 state highway policeman because of the fear he would be kidnapped.

Lehman, son of the founder of the Fair Store in Chicago, was one of 40 wealthy men that were under guard for the same reason because of a list of potential kidnapping-for-ransom victims reportedly written by Chicago gangsters.

Three 24-ounce bottles of root beer were selling for 25 cents at the National Food Store.

An article for women in the News reported that white and metallic accents were in the decorator touches that would help lend a spacious look to homes costing from $5,000 to $9,000, usually owned by those with average incomes.

A matchin chair and couch of tapestry or mohair was being sold for $89 at a local furniture store.

THIRTY YEARS AGO: July 23, 1953

Joan Cervenka was chosen to be the queen of the Antioch American Legion Carnival.

Jack Dempsey was slated to be an official at a local wrestling match.

Cynthia Ann and Christine Libert, twins born in an Antioch rescue squad, celebrated their first birthday.

Charlene Ann Nelson married Floyd McKinney.

Jane Wyman and Ray Milland were starring in "Let's Do It Again," at the local drive-in theater.

With that week's issue, the Antioch News began its 68th year of publication.

TEN YEARS AGO: July 18, 1973

The Antioch Planning Commission recommended that the Village of Antioch annex Tom Santino's land south of the village including the Antioch Country Club.

An editorial in the Antioch News also recommended that annexation so that the village would not lose control of the development.

But a petition with 200 names of village residents opposing the annexation was handed into Mayor Robert Wilton and the village board.

'WORLD' STARS — Littlechap (Larry Bullman) makes Flower Love gestures to reluctant Evie (Jennifer Biel) in PM&L's upcoming musical "Stop The World I Want To Get Off."

PM&L musical Director discusses 'World'

Barb Miller of McHenry, the P.M.&L. Theatre's current director for their upcoming musical "Stop the World-I Want to Get Off," describing the story line of the play before a recent rehearsal.

"Basically, it's about a very, very self-centered man who, emotionally, has never really grown up. He falls in love with the boss's daughter and marries and has children, but he's not emotionally mature enough to realize that he is indeed 'in love' with his wife. So he's always playing around, but every girl he meets is really a carbon copy of his wife," she said.

"It isn't until the end of the show that he finally sees his mistake (we can't say why) and that prompts the song 'What Kind of Fool Am I?'. We have a youthful cast, and we are approaching the show with a focus on comedy, fun and a good time. This kids have been working very hard and they are doing a very good job," she added.

Miller has been active in theatre all her life. She started acting at the age of nine and later turned to directing as an adult.

She began directing for the P.M.&L. four years ago with the musical "Gigi." She is well known for her staging at Andre's Dinner Theatre in Richmond, and her theatrical endeavors include teaching workshops in acting and dance as well as instructing body movement at Marian Central High School in Woodstock.

When asked who her favorite playwrights are, Miller replied, "If it's comedy I like Neil Simon. If it's drama I like Edward Albee and Tennessee Williams. When it comes to musicals, I like Stephen Sondheim." "Stop the World-I Want to Get Off" was also a personal choice.

Referring to the Palette, Masque & Lyre Theatre's intimate surroundings, she says, "I think it's amazing what we can do on that size stage."

"Stop the World-I Want to Get Off" opens July 29 and runs weekends through August 13. There is a matinee performance August 7, at 2:30 p.m.

For information and reservations, call (312) 395-3055. The P.M.&L. Theatre is located at 877 Main St., in Antioch.

ANTIOCH SAVINGS JOINS THE GREAT AMERICAN WAY.

Introducing new ways to serve you better.

If you're an Antioch Savings customer, you're about to have power added to your personal banking with better, broader service and greater investment possibilities. The GreatAmerican Way.

On July 8, 1983, the offices of Antioch Savings & Loan Assoc. were acquired by GreatAmerican Federal, a 49 year old Chicago and central Illinois area Savings and Loan with assets of over $930 million. GreatAmerican Federal is one of the strongest and largest Saving and Loan institutions in the United States, with profits of more than $15 million last year alone.

What does it all mean for you?

Smooth and uninterrupted service plus the added convenience of 27 offices throughout the entire Chicago/central Illinois area.

As part of the Great American Way, you'll have a single, financially sound institution with the kind of deposit base necessary to compete in tomorrow's marketplace. That means greater banking power for you.

We'll keep you fully informed of all developments as the transition to GreatAmerican Federal takes place. Meanwhile, it's business as usual at either of your two former Antioch Savings offices.

Financial security you can bank on. The GreatAmerican Way.
